RE: It's too late to come out from behind the Bushes!

0 days to go and Darcy still hasn't told the voters where she stands ...

For 504 days since she announced her candidacy, Darcy Burner has repeated partisan talking points and blasted the President rather than talking about the issues and telling voters where she stands.

The issues Darcy Burner HASN'T told us where she stands on:

Reauthorizing the Patriot Act
Port Security
Improving the ability of first responders to communicate
Reforming federal emergency management
Which veterans' budget she would support
Ending the Death Tax
The Secure Fence Act
Protecting retirees' pensions
Ending domestic violence and serving its victims
The Trifecta bill (includes the Sales Tax Deduction, the R&D tax credit and the minimum wage increase)
Association Health Plans

We know that Darcy:

Will cut Social Security Benefits
Will not extend the tax cuts
Does not support prosecuting terrorists
Will increase Social Security taxes
Is against CAFTA

The Tacoma News Tribune describes Darcy Burner's approach to politics as "overtly partisan," and it is indicative of how she'd serve; Darcy wants to push Jim McDermott and Nancy Pelosi's radical agenda. The Seattle Times describes Burner's negative campaign as "mean-spirited" and called her on "shamelessly obfuscate[ing] the truth about" (Seattle Times) Congressman Reichert's congressional record. Congressman Reichert, meanwhile, has stuck to talking about the issues, his 35-year record of public service and why he is a better fit for this district's savvy, informed electorate that wants a Representative that is in-tune with their needs and positions on the issues.
